Special Edition Celebrating Our Children!

We have developed one of the most progressive continuing education programs in the country which is consistent with a recent article in the New York Times (July 11, 2014 ) by Ann Carrns entitled "Affordable Day Camps Help Working Parents Enjoy the Summer, Too." Briefly, the article states that, ". . . if both you and your spouse work and you have school-age children, you may have another perspective on summer. . . So families rely on summer day camps. The number of summer day camps has grown by 40 percent over the last four years according to the American Camp Association. . . the market drives demand and the camps respond." WCCCD's camps are responding to our communities needs.
